

Course
Women's Rights and Women's Movement in international perspectives
Lecturer
Fatma Umul
Expenditure of Work
3 ECTS-Credits	Presence 30h	Self-study 60h
Exam
presentation
Language
English
Content
The course explores women`s rights and women`s movements from historical, social, political and intersectional perspectives. It examines the development of women`s rights, the emergence and transformation of women`s movements, and the struggles for gender equality in different historical and geographical contexts. - Foundational understanding of women`s rights and women`s movements; - Key historical developments in the struggle for women`s rights</li> <li>- Intersectional perspective on gender and inequality</li> <li>- History of feminism</li> <li>- Mutual influence of women`s movements and international documents defending women`s rights (CEDAW)</li> <li>- Women`s movements in the modern era due to access to the Internet (#MeToo movement) - Connect academic perspectives with professional practice issues in Social Work		